Part C - Recruitment and Selection Standards

(10) The University is committed to sourcing and securing the best available talent based on a combination of experience, qualifications, behaviours, values and capabilities to meet current and future workforce requirements.

(11) The University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to providing a workplace where all people can achieve. These values are reflected in recruitment and selection practices.

(12) The University believes that diversity of the workforce adds value to the University and creates a stronger, richer working environment for everyone. Special measures may be implemented to address specific support needed for groups that have historically faced disadvantages, such as women, people with disabilities, or Indigenous Australians.

(13) Staff participating in selection decisions and processes will ensure that they:

- a. are not influenced by irrelevant attributes of a person;
- b. declare any conflicts of interest that could improperly influence, or be seen to influence, their decisions or actions in the recruitment outcome as outlined in the Appropriate Workplace Behaviour Policy;
- c. ensure successful applicants must not be employed in a position where a relative or close associate directly or indirectly influences that position. If a staff member believes this is likely to occur, it must be raised immediately with the relevant Department Head or Portfolio leader to assess the level of conflict of interest;
- d. do not unlawfully discriminate in selection based on any protected characteristic as outlined in the University's Discrimination and Harassment Prevention and Management Policy and applicable law; and,
- e. make efforts to educate, identify and address any biases.

The principles of appropriate confidentiality and privacy are critically important in recruitment and selection processes. All staff participating in the recruitment and selection process must keep confidential the details of the process, including details of candidates and other individuals involved. Such details should only be disclosed on a need-to-know basis for making a hiring decision.

(14) The University is committed to progressive inclusivity and as far as practicable selection panels and shortlists are gender balanced and diverse in composition.

(15) The University is also committed to increasing the diversity of its workforce. The University will take proactive steps to address diversity in its workforce profile through recruitment and selection processes. This will identify barriers to the inclusion and advancement of equity target groups in accordance with the relevant Equity and Diversity Strategy for Staff.

The University Yannoneit Employment Strategy 2019 - 2021 supports the work of the Bathelmun Yalingwa Strategy which commits to the Universities Australia aspiration of increasing Aboriginal employment to 3% of the workforce. The Bathelmun Yalingwa Strategy outlines the ways we can gamadji (grow), dambunmon (share) and jerrboongun (connect) our Aboriginal community and culture through employment. The aspiration is for Victoria University to be a university where Aboriginal people can work and flourish in community with other Aboriginal staff and with all staff.

(17) Hiring managers are encouraged to contact the Executive Director, Moondani Balluk to discuss sourcing appropriately qualified Aboriginal candidates for roles and promoting awareness of roles within the Aboriginal community to attract candidates.

(18) The University is committed to making reasonable adjustments to provide a positive, barrier-free recruitment process for candidates with particular access needs. Candidates who require adjustments are encouraged to contact the designated contact person for the job to discuss their needs.
