(13) Reasonably Foreseeable - A reasonable person, in the same circumstances, would know or appreciate the risk of harm from the event or activity.

(14) Reasonable Belief

- a. A 'reasonable belief' is not the same as having proof beyond reasonable doubt but is more than a mere rumour or speculation.
- b. A 'reasonable belief' is formed if a reasonable person in the same position would have formed the belief on the same grounds. For example, a 'reasonable belief' might be formed if:
 - i. A Young Person states that they have been physically or sexually abused; or
 - ii. A Young Person states that they know someone who has been physically or sexually abused (sometimes the Young Person may be talking about themselves); or
 - iii. Someone who knows a Young Person states that the Young Person has been physically or sexually abused; or

Note:

* A reasonable belief is more than suspicion. There must be some objective basis for the belief. However, it is not the same as having proof and does not require certainty. For example, a person is likely to have a reasonable belief if they:

- a. Observed the conduct themselves;
- b. Heard directly from a Young Person that the conduct occurred;
- c. Received information from another credible source (including another person who witnessed the reportable conduct or misconduct).

* Only conduct by an Adult Against a Young Person is reportable under this Scheme (Young Person to Young Person is not reportable).
